WHY A BOARDING SCHOOL? WHY RIDLEY?

By Robert T. Snowden, Acting Headmaster

very June when our students gather outside their residences to say their good-byes, they frequently observe that the friendships they have formed at Ridley are deeper and more permanent than other friendships they have formed. Every year on Prize Day, the valedictorian talks about the strong bonds that the graduates share. Every year on Association Weekend, alumni will repeat the refrain, and they provide the best evidence of its truth: they have seen the friendships they formed at the school endure and strengthen over the years. One of the valuable advantages of Ridley is that even our day students, with their special place in our boarding houses, feel this attachment to those they go to school with.

To form friendships normally requires a friendly environment. But to cement these friendships, a good rding school will provide challenges, both public and private, both challenges that the school puts to its students and inner challenges that are a natural part of growing up. Our students come away from their boarding experience with a great deal of self-reliance and independence. Also, they come away with a great deal of tolerance and understanding of others. More importantly, they have probably learned a combination of humility and confidence born from the knowledge that their most rewarding and worthwhile achievements have required them to meet challenges with the help of others. They live, breathe, work and eat with people they would never have met otherwise, and they have learned that the effort of the group can exceed the sum of everyone's individual effort.

A boarding school makes a statement other schools do not: it says that if all a student's positive pursuits—academics, athletics, the arts, extra-curriculars, communal living — are integrated in a structured life on campus, the benefits are great and permanent. A good boarding education leaves the student with a sense of significant personal growth coupled with a sense of how important one's community is to a fulfilled life. In fact, at ley it is hard not to learn independence, self-reliance and responsibility for oneself and others. Expanded opportunities for leadership occur in helping new students adjust, in running the tuck shop, in assisting with house routines, or in serving as a House Prefect, to mention just a few. Regular exercise teaches the habit of good health. The list of lessons is almost endless. A boarding school takes seriously the student's development outside the classroom, insisting that academic success has its best chance in an environment where the student's character and self also grow.

Those who, like myself, went to a boarding school, will remember a set of conditions different from those that prevail today. From an outsider's perspective, our lives were composed of eccentric habits: beds made with hospital corners, shoes lined up in the cupboard, inspections before breakfast and prefects doling out their authority. Good housemasters ran their houses with stern affection; bad housemasters were objects of fun; their influence was modest anyway because prefects tended to run things in a system of authority that allowed teachers to teach while the students' social hierarchy carried on under the faculty's somewhat remote gaze and without much intervention. It was a system of authority that had many military overtones, understandably so given the place that two World Wars occupied in the lives of the families that sent their children to boarding school for most of this century. For those who thrived in this system, it was an energetic and happy life, a life in which, in particular, there was very little blaming of others for one's problems.

What we aim for at Ridley, in broad terms, is a balance between structure and family feeling. We have a routine that provides the comfort adolescents finds in order. We also have the sensitive supervision of teachers that is on the one hand firm enough to guide conduct, and on the other flexible enough to treat students as members of a family—albeit a large, extended family. Our residences are looked after by experienced, mature housemasters. I am happy to say that at Ridley, all of our eleven housemasters have families of their own at various stages of growth — some now off at university and some at pre-school. All of our teachers take a night of duty in the residence each week; they thus bring to their guidance of the students a full understanding of the rest of the school's programme, a keen academic interest, plus the wisdom of experience and judgement. Each teacher adopts a group of students as advisees for the school year, following their social and academic progress, and reporting back to parents on a regular basis.

While a housemaster's authority is still supreme, it is very much informed and tempered by the frequent input of students. Student opinion and response is sought formally in meetings in the residence. Prefects and other groups of students regularly meet with their housemasters. When housemasters have their own weekly meeting, two School Prefects attend to reflect student opinion and participate in decisions. There are thus many formal avenues for students to approach faculty and housemasters, but the frequency of these formal opportunities is greatly outnumbered by the dozens of informal chats that take place in the students' own rooms, in housemasters' living rooms, or on a bench outside the residence. On all these occasions, approachability is a hallmark of a housemaster's success.

The world at Ridley, somewhat sheltered from the more chaotic and negative elements of the outside world, still can't escape being a reflection of that world. The members of the Ridley family are human, and exhibit the breadth of behaviour that one finds in the rest of the world. The school is home for a very diverse group of students from all over the world, from all kinds of backgrounds. Although we cannot—and we probably would not want to — protect ourselves from the trials of the "real world", what a good boarding school will provide is a coherent moral and ethical environment that pervades school life, a sort of communal backbone. For instance, our students cannot help but feel strongly the influence of our Honour Code, so strongly do we hammer away at it. Its pillars are personal truthfulness, intellectual honesty, and respect for others. From this simple code follow all our other rules.

Ridley is a school, and the students who grow up here must have some tests and challenges. They will also have many people to help them along the way: friends to share their difficulties and successes, and faculty to provide advice and guidance. To join this community is not a simple thing; there is a complex set of conventions and beliefs that shape it. A good boarding school gives back to all members of its family the strength of this common philosophy. The school in which our students become friends is a school of books, athletic gear, blue blazers and school ties. It's a school of daily chapel, meals in the Great Hall, dances, theatre productions, and late study in their rooms at night. This daily life is so busy and full that it's hard to take time and contemplate the principles that shape it. But when we do, we begin to understand why these students become such deep and lasting friends. RT

SECURING RIDLEY'S FUTURE – PLANNED GIFTS MAC IRWIN TO CHAIR COMMITTEE

By Brian A. Iggulden, Director of Development & Alumni Affairs

s we celebrate a record year for the Ridley Fund and express our deepest gratitude to our donors and volunteer workers for their generous support, we are pleased to announce that S. MacDonald "Mac" Irwin '46 has agreed to serve as the founding chairman of the newly struck Planned Giving Committee.

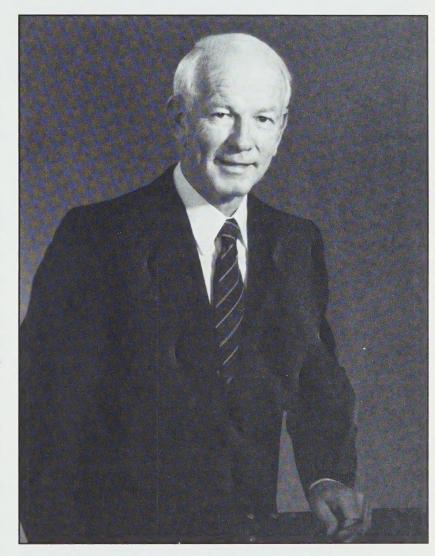

Mac has been a life-long supporter of Ridley, serving his school in virtually every volunteer capacity, the last as Chairman of the Board 1977 - 1981. By accepting this latest challenge, Mac has delighted current chairman, George Hendrie, the Development Committee and chair, Bruce Mitchell, as well as this author who is honoured to work with such an exemplary Ridleian.

Earlier articles in Tiger authored by Robert Stanley have detailed for readers some of the various planned giving vehicles available to supporters of Ridley College. In upcoming issues, we will continue to offer this kind of information and detail examples of donors who have made provision for Ridley by way of a planned gift.

Currently, the records of the Development Office hold confidential details of bequests and gifts of insurance policies made to the school, many during the Programme for Excellence or the 2nd Century Campaign. We suspect there may be other generous donors who have thoughtfully provided for the school in some way, but these details are not known at the school.

It does help the Board and the school in planning for the school's future to be aware of these potential gifts. If you have made a planned gift to Ridley and care to let the school know, please correspond with me, in confidence, at the school.

It is our belief that just as the Ridley Fund so positively affects and assures the success of Ridley's programmes today, the vehicles of planned giving will ure and insure the success of Ridley in the future by viding endowment funds for campus and facility maintenance, bursary and scholarship assistance, faculty excellence initiatives, curriculum seed monies and other special causes which are identified from time to time.

Please contact me at the address below, and I will be happy to discuss with you, in confidence, concepts of planned giving.

VIEW FROM THE TOWER

By Elizabeth H. Rupp, Assistant Head, Student Affairs & Margaret E. Watters, Middle School Grade 7 Teacher

n preparation for creating a CD of Ridley's favourite hymns, the entire student body rehearsed the Ridley songs they were going to record at St. Thomas' Church. One was new to me, showing how new I am to Ridley, and it was the Leaving Hymn, "Lord Dismiss us with Thy Blessing" which the boys used to sing at the end of the school year. The words of this hymn affected me particularly because I am preparing after seven years in Dean's House and two terms in this office to be a leaver myself. Suddenly, all goodbyethings take on a special poignancy. Like me, the about-tobe OR's speak of their impatient desire to be OUT OF HERE in the same breath that they mention their fear of the unknown and their indebtedness to Ridley in ways too numerous to mention. Recent Chapel talks by school prefects Aaron Brindle '94, Felicia Neil '94 and Maggie Boak '94 have dealt with variations on this theme. I share their sentiments.

Traditionally third term is a busy beautiful time on the Ridley campus and Trinity Term '94 is no exception. In early April when there was still snow to be plowed, the Ridley Music, Drama, Art and Dance students hosted the 4th annual Great Lakes Arts Festival, attended by independent schools from the United States and Canada. The three day extravaganza included workshops given by professionals in all the areas mentioned above in which the students were involved voluntarily. The juried art show allowed young painters, sculptors, photographers and mixed media people to enjoy the works of others in their field and to have the opinion of an adjudicator for their own masterpieces. One OAC drama class performed a play they wrote themselves in front of an enthusiastic audience (the other class presented their play at St. Andrew's College the same weekend) and musicians of all persuasions played and sang in small groups and huge massed choirs and bands. Perhaps the highlight of the Festival for the students were the coffee houses held each evening in the P.A.C. where jamming, rapping and chatting allowed a more informal exchange of ideas and artistic ideologies.

The second weekend in April took some 40 peripatetic musicians in the choirs, bands and orchestra to Roy Thompson Hall in Toronto for the annual Independent Schools Music Festival. The Ridley Jazz Band entertained in the foyer of the concert hall to an enthusiastic public. This energetic group included Mr. Dean Purdie '87, Gordon Woo '96, Peter Ho '96, Toria Laine '97, Drea Best '98, Leke Badejo '98, Tim Best '95, James Goodliffe '95, Romesh Galagoda '96, Jessica Locke '95, Tamara Smith '95, James Spearing '97, Erin Battis '96, Steve Pierson '94, Adam Wyrcimaga '95 and on occasion – Mr. Derek Fraser '79. Mr. Clyde Dawson, a member of the Music Department, was asked to conduct the Festival's Symphonic Band this year which included Ridley's Sam McGlone '98 and Leke Bajedo '98.

Baritones Marco Petracchi '95 and David Cheung '97 auditioned for and were invited to join the Ontario Youth Choir 1994. The choir's camp is at Ridley in August followed by a tour of western Ontario communities.

But art is not the only place where Ridley was making its mark this spring! On Tuesday, April 19, the Science Department hosted the Human Genome Conference, the first such undertaking by a secondary school in Ontario. Because genetic mapping is at the forefront of biological research in the 1990's, Mr. Bob Malyk, an OAC biology teacher, and department chair, Mr. Brian Martin, wanted Ridley grade 11 and OAC Biology students to gain firsthand knowledge of this vitareae from leading experts in the field. The conference included such internationally known genetic researchers as Dr. John MacPherson of the University of California at Irvine and Dr. Karen MacPherson of the same univer-, Dr. Alan Swayze, a psychiatrist connected with a genetic testing program at North York General Hospital, Dr. Karl Tibelius who directs the Canadian Genome Project and Abbyann Lynch, director of bioethics at Toronto's Hospital for Sick Children. After the morning's panel discussion and individual presentations, the Ridley students ate lunch with the panelists and others in Williams Hall. The afternoon program for the OAC students involved actual hands-on gene splicing! This painstaking but real research was followed by dinner for the participants as well as other members of the Science Department at Kenyon-Lett House. The day concluded with a panel entitled "Women in Science" and featured, among others, two fascinating views by Indira Pillay '88 and Trisha Lennox '88, both successful and keen "women in science." The entire, jam-packed day was a challenging and stimulating glimpse at the real world of science.

The Mandeville Theatre witnessed another impressive display of talent of a different sort a little later in the month when the annual Public Speaking Contest k place under the direction of Miss Virginia Vickers. There are two categories, junior and senior, and each was hotly contested by a slate of outstanding Ridleians whose composure and provocative topics impressed the audience and the judges, The Rev. Dr. Gerald Shantz, Mr. Brian Iggulden '67 and Mr. Carl Dorland. Making their final decision in each division must have been extremely difficult but they awarded the prize in the junior division, the Women's Guild Prize for Public Speaking, to Alana Tervo '96 for her speech on taboos and the second place prize in the senior division, The Hon. Mr. Justice Kingstone Memorial Prize, to James Ross '94 for his illuminating talk on the what is good music. Finally the judges granted the longest continuously awarded prize at Ridley College, the Dr. W.H. Merritt Memorial Prize, to Elise Taylor '95. Elise's first place entry was a speech about living with her Granny and she was able to share her pride in her achievement with her grandmother who had travelled with Elise's mother and father from Mississauga to listen to the speech.

May at Ridley is synonymous with cadets and this rethe weather cooperated for both Church Parade and det Inspection. The reviewing officer, Colonel Ian F. Reid '44, filed through the well drilled and smartly dressed ranks of Cadet Corps 162 promptly at 11:00 a.m.

Cadet Inspection prize winners, front row L-R: Outstanding Cadet in 'D' Company – Kathryn Hill '00, Best Tribe in Middle School – The Algonquins under Lt. Kevin Howe's '99 command, Best Recruit (Female) - Lindsay Wright '98, Most Diligent and Hardworking NCO in the Band – Shannon Cavanagh '94, the Best Platoon – No. 2 Platoon commanded by Lt. Jody Zajacz '94 and Sgt. Claire Kilmer '94. Second row L-R: the NCO who has done most for the betterment of the Corps - Felicia Neil '94, Best Contribution in the Brass Section -Jessica Locke '95, in the Woodwind Section - Zoe Steele '97, Best Officer – Lt. Regan Shea '94, Best Contribution in the Woodwind Section – James Spearing '97, in the Percussion Section – Heather Scott '96, Best Recruit in the Band – Leke Badejo '98. Third row L-R: Heaman Prize for Military Proficiency – Dan Gagnon '94, Best Recruit(Male) – Luke Ware '95, Best Cadet (Female) – Heather Cukierski '94 and (Male) – Jonathan Watson '95, Best Contribution in the Percussion Section – Adam Wyrcimaga '95 and Headmaster Bob Snowden.

Saturday May 7th. The marching was outstanding and the performances of the Drill Team and Cadet Band were well appreciated by those in attendance. Perhaps the happiest award granted by Colonel Reid went to the entire Cadet Corps in the form of an extra half holiday for a job well done.

The Cadet Band performed the next weekend in the Niagara Falls' Annual Blossom Festival Parade where they were awarded the Blossom Award for the Best Band in the 60-member and under category. They also hope to be included in the Grape and Wine Festival Parade held in St. Catharines in late September.

The first annual (?) Ridley staff dramatic production Streuth had a full house sitting on the edge of its seats, Monday, May 9th. The spoof of a typical British whodunit allowed students to witness a new side to the multi-talented adult members of the Ridley community...and a most unusual side it was too! Under the able direction of Mr. Mike Hamilton the production featured such notables of the stage as Mrs. Diane Brezicki as the Corpse, Mr.

Chris Loat '62 as the butler, Mrs. Libby Rupp as the cook, Mr. Simon Hall as Mr. D'arcy, Mrs. Karen Close as his wife, Mr. Rodney Reimer as their son, Mr. Don Rickers as the Major, Mr. Paul Lafrance as the Sergeant, Mr. Jim Bryan as the Vicar (and the villain!) and the redoubtable Mr. Brian Smith as the Inspector. The evening's proceeds ("pay a Loonie to see the loonies") raised $250 which the cast has donated to Bethlehem Place, a local residence for people in transition.

No sooner had the curtain closed on that production than the annual Amnesty Concert began rehearsals. The life force behind this year's sellout success was James Ross '94, long an influential factor in all sorts of student run (and enjoyed) musical endeavours.

May saw an initiative from Middle School appropriately titled "Southern Exposure," a news bulletin and in-house newspaper featuring items of interest to those Ridleians on the south side of campus. Active and involved both in their school and the greater community, the students and faculty of RCMS took part in "Pitch-In Week" when they helped clean up two city beaches. This is the 4th year Ridley has participated in the city-run event. The kind of garbage (mostly plastic) and the quantity (enormous) taught an important lesson. In keeping with the ecological awareness, the Environment Group raised funds selling Rainforest Crunch and sponsoring a "grub day" which netted $175. The money was sent to "Save the Tiger" an appeal of World Wildlife Fund. An appropriate Ridley choice!

The Middle School Arts and Science Night was a great success. All grade 5/6 students were given a chance to shine in these funny new versions of old fairy tales and rhymes, but Rebecca Leung '01 provided the link that bound them together by tapping her typewriter. Hilary Nudel '01, a star in the making, provided more continuity as she suffered a series of unfortunate (and hilarious) accidents throughout the play.

Grade 7 P's contribution was set a doctor's waiting room and allowed Cam Stewart '00, Kathryn Hill '00 and Carolyn Bowman '00 to shine as a doddering old trio. 7 M's production, set in a zoo, led to the unfortunate demise of Andrew Sinclair '00 who was far too studious for his own good! The final dramatic piece, "The Will" performed by 7 C, displayed Mike Schadinger's '00 talent as the tricky old uncle who puts his heirs to the test. John Wong's '00 musical talent at the piano was most impressive, especially in the piece from Godspell for which he was the accompanist.

Science too was centre stage at the Arts and Science Night. Outstanding projects by Anja Rahn '02 on Gravity and Plant Growth; Smita Joshi '01 on Blood Circulation; Alex Felton '00 on Hydroponics and Beth Ruzylo '99 on the exciting prospects in diaper recycling were ably organized by teachers Ms. Erin Hayakawa and Mr. John Shea.

On Saturday May 28th, 10 members of 7P departed for Algonquin Park under the guidance of Ms. Dianne Purdie and Mr. Ian Johnston. She describes their adventures, "Once we discovered the trick to lighting the cook stoves (with Stefan Kahandaliyanage's '00 assistance) we were off for the hike along the Western Upland Trail. We quickly split into two groups with the keen campers well ahead of the rest. Both groups made it to camp despite threatening skies and after a good supper we slept to the sound of loons and owls. After five hours of hiking the next day, we returned happily to base camp. Ghost stories around the campfire got the best of Jane Lai '00 and Lindsay Kindellan '00 so we headed off for bed.

In April, the Upper and Middle School combined forces to raise money for the St. Catharines Cancer Society. From L-R: Miranda Ionson '95, Matthew Walton '94, Mrs. Wendy Trottier, mother of Bryan Connell '88, Anja Rahn '02 and Joe Galiwango '99. The drive was successful in raising $463.49 for the Cancer Society.

Unfortunately, 7:00 a.m. came too quickly and it was time to pack and head home. The front group (Kathryn Hill, Katie Collins '00, Cam Stewart, Lindsay Kindellan and Jane Lai) led by Ian Johnston made it back to the vans in a record time of 1 hour and 5 minutes! They were happy to see not only the vans but the keys which had been "misplaced" on the trail the day before. When we ard the joyous screams from Carolyn Bowman '00 and Sharlene Schrompf '00 we knew the journey was almost complete. The last group returned after two hours of hiking. Without Oudou Khairallah's '00 encouraging word, Fiona McLaughlin '00 made it! We were overjoyed by the sight of McDonald's (real food!) with no dishes to wash and clean water."

The last weekend of May also found the grade 12 class on an adventure of a different kind. The entire class spent the afternoon at Brock University where they participated in leadership and team building activities. Since these students will be the leaders of the school in 3 short months, the Housemasters'

Committee, with a generous donation from the Niagara Women's Guild, arranged for them to spend time away from campus to focus on their vital role for next year. The day was capped by a barbecue and discussion of grade 13 status. The School Prefects who will be the leaders of this class were recently announced by admaster Bob Snowden. They are... Naledi ambridge '95, Cori Brown '95, Shamir Doshi '95, Allison Griffiths '95, Miranda Ionson '95, Sean Jordan '95, Jessica Locke '95, Summer Nudel '95, Jenn Olchowy '95, Heather Rigby '95, Penny Smith '95, Sarah Sterne '95 and Cam Tedford '95. Several members of the class of '94 have been honoured in various ways this spring. Alison Loat '94 was the recipient of the "Young Women in Public Affairs" award given by the local chapter of Zonta International and Sarah Scandrett '94 was runner-up for the YWCA Vicky Hull Memorial Award for Youth Leadership.

At the 8th annual Literary Dinner, Mr. Colin Brezicki announced a new prize in Drama. Last year's speaker, Richard Naylor '79, donated his stipend to establish the "There are no small parts only small actors" Award. The first winner was Summer Nudel '95. Other drama prizes also donated by Old Ridleians were awarded to Frank Pirri '94 (the Mandeville Trophy for greatest contribution to theatre at Ridley) and to Aaron Brindle '94 and Megan Cole '94 (the Hume Cronyn Prize for Acting).

The playing fields and rowing course have echoed with cheers and sighs as Ridley athletes competed against other schools, against other houses and against their own personal bests. The Girls' Gymnastics team, coached by Mrs. Karen Oude-Reimerink and Ms. Dianne Purdie, had its most successful season ever. The level 2 team (Julie Irvine '95, Sarah Kellaway '97, Madelaine Cole '97 and Jodi Crossingham '97) placed first in the Zone. The team then sent four gymnasts to the OFSAA championships, Emily Leung '97, Julie Irvine '95, Jennifer Epp '95 and Heather Scott '96. All four girls finished in the top 10 in their divisions and our top placers were Emily Leung, 2nd in level 3 floor exercises and balance beam, and Julie Irvine, 6th in level 2 vault. Our region (SOSSA) was the top region of the 12 schools represented this year.

On Prize Day, the Middle School major award winners are from L-R: Rebecca Leung '01 – E.H.M. Burn Memorial Prize, Elizabeth Dancy '00 – The Harry J. Daniel Award, Sam Bellhouse '99 – The Stephen Court Memorial Prize, Leah Hamilton '99 – The Isobel Burton Memorial Prize and The Mason Gold Medal, and Beth Ruzylo '99 – The Leslie Ashburner Memorial Prize and The J.R. Hamilton Prize.

Track and Field also brags about a fine season with Heather Scott '96 and John Dill '95 qualifying up to the OFSAA regional championships, Heather in the junior girls 80 m hurdles and John in the junior boys 800 metres. The culmination of the year is the OFSAA championships this year in Kitchener where Gen Okita '95 finished 5th in the province running the senior boys 800 metre race and Samantha McGlone '98 ran the same event for Midget Girls and came 17th. Coaches Ms. Maggie Swan, Mr. Paul Lafrance and Dr. Lowell Scott accompanied these runners to Kitchener.

One of the winningest teams at school this spring was the Golf Team who brought home the CISAA Tournament Shield for the second year in a row. Coach Mr. Mike Hamilton says that Fraser Young '96, Brian Stewart '96, Steve Carruthers '95 and John Manning '97 played outstandingly all season. The Lacrosse Team compiled another impressive record winning the city championship and then the Ontario Division Two Field Lacrosse Championship. This outstanding group of athletes was lead by captains Toby McConnell '94, Chris Kaufman '94 and Tracy Moors '94 and top scorer Chris Mackie '98 who should have many fine years of contribution left.

The highlight of the annual Sports Day is the house tug-of-war won this year by Gooderham East and Arthur Bishop East. The culmination of the season and the Trinity Term Sports Dinner is the announcement of the winners of the J.R. Matheson Trophy for best male athlete and the C.W. Dorland Memorial Trophy for the best female athlete. A standing ovation greeted this year's winners Toby McConnell '94 and Rachel Bartlett '94, respectively.

And so as the Rupp family moves out of Dean's House and anticipates with great eagerness and some trepidation a year living in Greece, the words of the Leaving Hymn seem as appropriate for us as for the class of '94:

Lord, dismiss us with thy blessing;

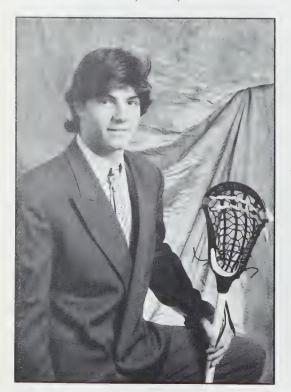

Fill our hearts with joy and peace;

let us each, thy love possessing,

triumph in redeeming grace;

O refresh us, O refresh us, travelling through the wilderness.

THE LONG RANGE STRATEGIC PLAN VOLUME 4 – THE HISTORY DEPARTMENT

By Michael A. Scott, Chairman of the History Department

t the beginning of the year, the History Department was asked by the administration to begin the process of implementing the Long Range Strategic Plan.

In September, we held a full department meeting where we categorized and ranked what we felt should be the department's long range objectives. A number of areas were targeted but the main goals that emerged were the following:

- 1. To develop a Master Skills Index which would identify the central historical skills and indicate the appropriate years where they would be both introduced and taught from the Middle School through to the O.A.C. levels.
- 2. To explore the opportunities available in our courses to enhance the development of inter-disciplinary studies.
- 3. To investigate the possibility of an expansion of the number of courses presently offered within the department.

In October and November, the department held two full afternoon meetings. At this time, we analyzed carefully the Ridley Long Range Planning documents that arose out of the Strategic Planning Workshop in order to concentrate upon the main areas that we felt pertained particularly to the History Department. Once this was accomplished, we compared these items to our own departmental long range objectives. It was soon evident that the two were quite compatible. Consequently, we began the task of establishing sub-committees within the department that were mandated to pursue specific objectives arising out of this series of meetings.

Over the course of the second and third terms, we have made substantial progress in dealing with our objectives. The Master Skills Index is well underway. A large number of central skills best suited to the study of History have been catalogued. An overview from Grade five to the O.A.C. levels has been developed that shows the various skills, the appropriate year of introduction and the additional years of development and enhancement of each skill. All of this information is recorded on database.

As an example, in terms of the development of oral presentation skills, we begin with the purpose, structure and preparation of reports to the class in Middle School and finish with full period seminars at the O.A. level. Secondly, with assistance from Paul Lafrance, we combined the Civics Unit of the Contemporary Canada course with the statistical skills of the Mathematics department and the technology provided by the Computer Department. In the recent federal election, following an all candidates meeting at the school, we held a poll of the Ridley students before the election and a school vote on election day.

Finally, we have initiated the task of preparing for the introduction of a Law Course to be taught at the Senior level in September 1994. Progress has been made in evolving a course outline and in purchasing suitable films and reference works that will be required. Over the summer, we will endeavour to complete this process. As it stands now, the course will provide an examination of the societal impact of law, the authorization of law, law enforcement agencies, the judicial process, correctional services, family law and selected Federal Statutes (i.e. Young Offenders Act) and considerations from the Criminal Code.

Next year, our aim is to make further progress in attaining the first two objectives and to begin to implement our remaining goals.

Going Out Good: Samuel George Heaman '39 1921-1994

A TRIBUTE: BY GERALD S. SHANTZ, CHAPLAIN

And the seventh sorrow

Is the slow good-bye

Of the face with its wrinkles
that looks through the window

As the year packs up

Like a tatty fairground

That came for the children.

t seventy-three the Lieut. Colonel was thinning but elegant. For him aging, illness and the spectre of death was the time when you prepare to leave the world as you would expect to find it — in terms of one's private papers and possessions generally, all neat and tidy, and as a place for a new society, with an example and some good advice. Such was Sam Heaman. He had documented his own existence almost from the start, and had rarely missed a day in which he did not write or reflect upon some activity, small or large. Like Sir Thomas More, in Bolt's A Man for All Seasons, he "liked to keep his affairs regular." A passion for literary moralizing, adage, aphoristic sayings, proverbs, mottoes, and the like kept him feisty, whilst half a century of photography preserves many albums of illustrated autobiography.

He was the kind of man who documented himself and who was yet not egotistical. He was highly intelligent and unguarded, discussing anything and everything with a striking directness — "the eulogy at the memorial should be forty to fifty minutes padre. Don't ramble in your usual fashion!"

Sam Heaman's achievements in both civic and litary concerns were impressive and are at hand for all see, if they so wish. Sam entered Ridley in 1933 and was associated with it in one way or another until the day he died on May 16, 1994 — 61 years. Surely by anyone's standard he was one of Ridley's "great hearts".

Hamlet learned that "readiness is all". During Sam's last months I was privileged to observe from a close and convenient distance his preparations to make himself "ready" for that last frontier of life — dying. He taught me that the end is indeed full of death but also full of life. It is tolerable achievement and it is a disaster. It transcends desire and it taunts it. It is long enough and it is far from being long enough. Assume nothing at all. Even to hope you might live forever brings the end too close. Pace, Sam. RT fter six months of increasingly intense preparation, a party of 34 choristers boarded a jet for Vienna whereupon we undertook 4 performances in the first 4 days! Jetlag was cast aside as we stood and sang at the spot where Mozart was married, in St. Stephen's Dom. Were we really there? It was also our first taste of the hoards of tourists that were to be our supporter's club throughout the tour. A scheduled rehearsal in the Augustine Church, part of the Hofburg Palace, turned into an open concert due to the throngs of tourists. Later that day we met the Vienna Choir Boys at their Choir School, where we not only toured their facilities but we sang for them and they for us - a memorable occasion. Mass at the Franziskaner Church topped off our Viennese visit before heading for the hills, and Salzburg. Excitement grew as we neared the sights and scenes from The Sound of Music. January Hill '95 was heard to exclaim that she would like to be married in the same church as the Von Trapps! We also sampled too much chocolate and pastries and none of us had the strength to resist. Mozart's birthplace was such a natural museum and brought alive much of the wonder and beauty of his music. Space does not permit me to give a full account of our crossing the border into the Czech Republic. Suffice it to say that none of us will forget that day and how we all experienced the school motto "Terar dum Prosim".

Our evening concert that day began 1/2 hour late before a full church, each person having paid the equivalent of $15.00 a ticket! The concert was fabulous.

We now fully appreciate the differences between the East and West or Communism vs Democracy. These feelings and experiences were to remain with us for the rest of the trip. The once beautiful city of Dresden made us all think of the horror of war but on the other hand, we could appreciate how painstakingly the Germans are restoring the buildings. Leipzig, synonymous with Bach and Mendelssohn beckoned. Unquestionably it was a highlight for myself - a kind of musical pilgrimage. We sang in "Bach's" St. Thomas Kirche for an hour long Mass, utilizing two of three organs in the church. The Pastor gave the students hort history of Bach and his influence on Church music, as we gathered around his simple grave strewn with a few fresh flowers. The next day, some of us returned there and witnessed a choral and orchestral rehearsal of the Bach "St. John Passion". I had to be forcibly removed from the pew to board our "home away from home" – our Mercedes luxury coach!

Many students had long anticipated seeing Berlin. What a city! A city of contrasts, largely economical. We were all moved and to some degree shaken by standing inside the empty 1936 Olympic Stadium. Little was said, but our imaginations were working overtime. The drive past Hitler's former Chancellery mow demolished) and through the Brandenburg Gate, past the former Gestapo building/ruin to Checkpoint Charlie left us all rather dumbfounded. At the Reichstadt which is being refurbished for the transfer of power from Bonn back to Berlin, we stood and stared at recent memorials to those East Germans who had been shot as they escaped across the river. The remains of the Wall drew our students who attempted to get a souvenir (some did!)

Our final concert was in the ultra modern Kaiser Wilhelm Memorial Church. Bombed in the war and only partially preserved, the new church rises out of those ruins. After all those beautiful Baroque Churches, we were jolted by the modernity of stone, glass and sculpture of the modern day Berlin. Whilst I have not been able to cover everything, I do believe that I speak for all of us when I suggest that we all grew up a little on this tour. Our standard of music continued to rise and we know from the reception we received, that we were impressive! The name of Ridley College was certainly on the lips of many complete strangers. # THE JULIAN STREET MEMORIAL PRIZE FOR PROSE THE IMPORTANCE OF COMEDY

BY NANCY ELLEN MILLER '94

"If the world were clear, art wouldn't exist."
- Albert Camus
"Illusion is the only reality"
- Gustave Flaubert

heatre is an illusion. While the folks on stage, along with their conflicts, emotions, and situation, may seem real, we're all aware that they are but players, acting out a role. However, some part of us accepts actors as not being mere players but rather honest and true characters. Indeed, some part of us is very easily convinced by a good performance — by a careful illusion. Good theatre, like good art, speaks to a different part of us, bypassing the cloudy filter of reason and the fears and prejudices of the habitual mind.

Integrally, comic theatre performs the same function. Comedy, humour and wit, give us another way to look at things, a different way of living, one which our habitual, rational mind does not recognize. Comedy challenges the accepted notions of reality and creates new ones. It laughs at things usually taken seriously and rejects reason's authority in matters of reality. Comedy presents a world around us that we don't ordinarily see; it brings us back to our senses by opening our eyes and ears to another reality or to this reality. By laughing at the absurd, making a joke of what was once taken seriously, using puns and non-sequiturs, comedy reminds us that the world is not what it appears to be, that what we ordinarily perceive as reality is not reality at all. Comedy reminds us that we are constantly being deceived. Consequently, it also reminds us that the self we think we are is not the real self. Laughing deprives us all of the opportunity to take ourselves seriously and what results is the realization that the self, that is, the individual, is as much of an illusion as the world of matter.

When Moon in the middle of The Real Inspector Hound by Tom Stoppard asks, "For what is this play concerned with?" and then answers himself, "It is my belief that here we are concerned with what I have referred to elsewhere as the nature of identity." we laugh at his remark. The play he speaks of is a ridiculous farce. How could it possibly deal with something as profound as the nature of identity? Our answer lies in our laughter, our sudden recognition of the absurdity and ridiculousness of something that is usually taken seriously. When Moon mentions the names of Kafka, Sartre, Shakespeare and Beckett, and goes so far to say that the author has given us the human condition, we laugh again at his absurdity not understanding that it is also our own identity which is being made a joke. Moon is not so far off when he compares Kafka, Sartre, Shakespeare and Beckett's work to The Real Inspector Hound, when we consider that these writers also deal with the absurd and the ridiculousness of life. And even though The Real Inspector Hound is admittedly a farce, it does in a way, give us the human condition. It mocks the ways of the world and transforms our own bewilderment about relationships, chaos and death into a hilarious comedy.

The opening description of the set, reminds us that the absurdity of what is being performed on stage is not separate from our own identity. The first thing is that the audience appear to be confronted by their own reflection in a huge mirror. The theatre, like the mirror, is an illusion and one which constantly reflects our own condition. On stage, and especially in The Real Inspector Hound, fantasy and realism play in and out, alternately carrying each other. Comedy is more than mere absurdity. It portrays life as significantly as tragedy. Comedy takes place all the time, wherever one is, and art simply facilitate persuading one that this is the case. Great artists are great fools, and like classic fools or court jesters, they tell the truth, point out the king's weakness and political realities.

Fool: The sweet and bitter fool

Will presently appear;
The one in motley here.

The other found out there.

Lear: Dost thou call me a fool, boy?

Fool: All other titles thou hast given away:

That thou was born with.

Shakespeare

The Tragedy of King Lear

Comedy is very much concerned with the nature of identity. It relieves realities hiding behind a mask of seriousness and rationality and challenges our own notion of identity. When we laugh, often it is because we realize the follies of ourselves. But we also laugh at the characters in The Real Inspector Hound, all of them reduced to some form of stereotype. We laugh at them not necessarily because we recognize ourselves in them, but rather because of their perceived lack of understanding. In a bey, we divert ourselves with these characters who seem be so below us in point of understanding. George Orwell said "The aim of a joke is not to degrade a human being, but to remind him he is already degraded."

Comedy relishes in our ignorance and our limitations. Comics and the fools we laugh at embrace this ignorance in hope that another intelligence might emerge. Reason may be humanity's greatest boon but it is also our bitterest curse, perhaps even our fatal flaw. In our rationality we perceive that we have mastery of our world, but are by that same reason separated from that world. Life is not clear, it is many things at once. It is meaningful and meaningless, important and insignificant, a joke and a yoke. These mutually exclusive qualities exist simultaneously. With comedy we are reminded not to take ourselves quite so seriously. It questions our identity by asking us to let go of our impossible craving for certainty or significance and asks us to be comfortable with unfamiliarity, to delight in all the bizarre and wondrous interpretations of the mystery.

When Felicity replies to Moon, who is now Inspector Hound, at the end of the play, after he has gone long, creative lengths to interpret the mystery, she says to him "But it doesn't make sense!" Well no, it doesn't, but neither do we. [81]

LANDSCAPE COMMITTEE

Visitors to the campus over the past few years never fail to comment on the physical beauty of our facilities and grounds. This of course, is a compliment to the hard work of Les Andrew and the school maintenance staff, to Cam Beneteau and his grounds crew and to the vision and planning of the school Landscape Committee chaired by Tony Kemp '56.

It is also testimony in no small way to the effectiveness of the Tree Planting programme begun in 1989. Since it inception there have been over 70 trees purchased for the School grounds — trees of common and exotic species, some large, some smaller but all making a dramatic contribution to the overall beauty of the campus.

Each June many parents have purchased trees to celebrate the graduation of their sons and daughters. Reunion classes have used single plants or groves of trees to recognize special reunions (i.e. Class of 1936) and families often memorialize departed loved ones by planting a tree in their honour on the campus.

One friend of the school who deserves special accolades is Mr. Ron Angleman, who with his Shelty Bunnie, is often seen enjoying walks around the campus perimeter. Ron has provided the school with no fewer than 19 crimson maples in the northeast corner of the Harry Foster Field. The "Angleman Grove" is a very attractive horticultural addition to the campus.

The campus beautification program is one with the long view in mind. Anyone wishing to know details about the Tree Planting Program is invited to contact the Development Office at Ridley.

On Thursday, April 21 Marilyn Martin and Libby Rupp accompanied Brian Iggulden to the home of Ken and Daphne Clark — the site of this year's Sarnia reception. The Sarnia Branch is a spirited and close group of current parents and alumni who always provide gracious and warm hospitality to Ridley guests and prospective families alike.

The beautiful home of Ken and Daphne and the delicious food contributed by so many members of the Sarnia Women's Guild combined with the good fellowship of the branch members to create a memorable evening.

It was especially pleasant to welcome Mr. & Mrs. Ken Hudson '37 and Dr. Harry Rounthwaite '40 to the reception. On behalf of all branch participants and the Ridley representatives, sincere thanks are extended to the Clarks for all their efforts on behalf of the School.

ALL SCHOOLS REUNION - OTTAWA

A small but loyal group welcomed Brian Iggulden and Derek Fraser to Ottawa on Thursday, April 28th. On the occasion of the annual development officers' conference, this year hosted by Ashbury College, the second annual All-Schools Reunion was held in the gymnasium at Ashbury. Many wonderful displays from independent schools from all over Canada were present and a very festive atmosphere was created.

Special thanks to Peter Burn '71, who assisted in contacting alumni in the Ottawa branch and making them aware of the event. Over 20 Ridleians dropped by to say hello and to enjoy a wonderful reception.

WINDSOR/DETROIT

An international array of Ridleians and guests from Australia to Michigan, U.S.A. awaited the arrival of Brian Iggulden who travelled from the school to visit with Windsor Branch members on May 11, 1994. Only the opening of the Casino two nights later proded a more exciting evening in the hectic social lives of our hosts George and Janet Hendrie!

MEXICO CITY

On Thursday, May 18 Sr. and Sra. Faes, parents of Jose '76, Monica '76, Alejandro '78 and Dino '81, hosted a gathering of approximately 40 guests at their home in Pedregal de San Angel. For Ridley representatives Brian and Marilyn Martin and Brian and Rosemary Iggulden the occasion of their first visit to Mexico was memorable, made so by the overwhelming generosity and genuine warm friendship extended to them by all their Mexican friends.

Several strong candidates for Ridley were interviewed by Marilyn and the school plans regular visits to Mexico in the future to further its efforts to strengthen ties with graduates and their families as well as to continue the legacy of attracting capable, outstanding candidates for Ridley.

Special thanks are extended to Sra. Faes who graciously hosted a delicious dinner for her guests and to Dino Faes who arranged interviews and worked to guarantee such a wonderful mix of guests. We look forward to our return.

Ridley visitors to Mexico City should be sure to visit the clothing store named "Merritt House" in the airport. The store, owned by the Faes brothers, features wonderful historic photographs of Ridley as the store decorations!

HAMILTON BRANCH

The Ancaster Old Mill Inn served as the site for this year's reception on Thursday, May 26th organized by new chairman Bruce Williamson '66. Despite the overcast evening the view over cascading streams was lovely.

Approximately 40 guests greeted acting Headmaster, Robert Snowden, to hear his comments on the school year.

Again a pleasant mix of young and senior graduates attended with both current, past and perspective parents. Sincere thanks are extended to Bruce and his beautiful wife Karen for their support and graciousness in acting as host and hostess for all Ridley guests.

The Hamilton Branch reception was held at the Ancaster Old Mill Inn this past May, from L-R: Kathryn Yates '90, Lee Embree '90, Bob Snowden, Acting Headmaster, Norm Embree '62, and Tris Lett '66, father of Brittany '98.

BUFFALO BRANCH

Approximately 40 Ridleians and school representatives attended the June 1st reception at the spectacular home of Stig-Ove and Marja-Liisa Hansen. The brisk, clear summer evening afforded guests a spectacular view of Lake Ontario and the Boston Hills country-side. As Bob Hunt '66 commented, "To see a view this beautiful would certainly change peoples' perceptions of Buffalo."

Those of us who have enjoyed the Hansen hospitality in the past already have a very favourable perception of Buffalo and especially of its Ridley family members. This year's gathering was again memorable and sincere gratitude is expressed to Stig '59, Marja-Liisa, Alex '87 and Pia '90 for their support and generosity. It was a special treat to welcome Stig's mother who was visiting from Mexico City.

ARCHIVAL CORNER

When school re-opens in September, the long-awaited Archives Room will be ready for student use. During the course of the year the display cabinetry and the finishing details will be completed, more or less on schedule. The facility will be opened, officially, in May 1995. The period of time between September and March will give us time to organize the various displays of material which give the Project such potential as an educational tool for current Ridleians and which make a strong statement about the School's commitment to preserve its heritage.

A number of 'new' artifacts and photos have been received in recent months. From Jim Walter '30 we have received a bedside mat in excellent condition; from Tony Doherty '36 a tiny porcelain creamer from the oldest dining hall; from Alf Chapman '45 an Eaton jacket. We have been promised by John Jones '63 a canvass jacket, a rare item so much a part of the early football days. We have also acquired a partial set of cutlery monogrammed "B.R.C." from the dining hall of the late 1940's. If anyone remembers using "B.R.C." monogrammed cutlery, we would appreciate knowing the years. Below is a photo of a few of Ridley's porcelain treasures from the turn of the century.

[R] Photoby Paul Lewis

We know that the word is getting around that Ridley artifacts and photos from yesteryear are both welcomed and preserved. If anyone has specific ideas regarding the opening of the facility, please communicate with Brian Iggulden. We will, of course, be recognizing the major donors who made this project a reality.

Faculty Departures

Harry Clelland along with his wife Sandra and their children Naomi, Gareth and Chantal are heading back to the U.K. to The Perse School, Cambridge. Harry came to Ridley to take over as the Head of the Modern Languages Department in September 1990. While at Ridley, Harry exposed many students to his love of languages and was successful in the installation of a state-of-the-art language laboratory this year. We wish the Clellands all the best at Cambridge.

Crane Gittins arrived at Ridley last fall to teach in the History Department. The independent school system was new to Crane, but he soon found that he thrived in the teaching, activities and pastoral life with students at Ridley. Merritt House North will miss this rookie master, as will the History Department. Crane is moving to Waterloo to teach at Grand River Collegiate next fall and we send him with best wishes for his future in education.

Jenny-Kate Larsen joined the English Department last fall and also found the life around Ridley to be the type of environment she enjoyed. Jenny-Kate coached her 2nd Girls Soccer team to the C.I.S.A.A. Championship this spring and also enjoyed coaching basketball earlier in the year. She has accepted an offer to teach English in Calgary at Holy Trinity Secondary School in the fall. In the meantime, a July marriage to Tim Gilligan is keeping her busy and we wish them all the best in the West!

Brian Smith came to Ridley last fall through an exchange with George Briggs. George would teach Geography at Beamsville Secondary School, while Brian did the same at Ridley. Brian threw himself into many activities such as the musical, the faculty production of Streuth as well as coaching cricket. We are aware that Brian has enjoyed his experience and we extend our thanks to Brian for letting us know what a great school we have!

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN... Mr. Harry 'Red' Foster

by Paul E. Lewis

Anyone growing up in Canada in the 1930-40's will remember Harry Foster for his Crown Brand Sports Club radio broadcasts, his live radio coverage of the CFL, and his celebrity extravaganzas to sell government Victory bonds on the home front during World War II.

Written by Ridley College

Faculty member, Paul Lewis, Harry Foster's biography shows us the life of a famous Canadian and teaches us about a gentler time, when Canada was young and full of promise. Harry Foster started from modest means in Toronto early in the 20th century. By the end of his career he had become a household name across the country, pioneered radio sportscasting, established one of the leading advertising firms in the country, and devoted much of his time and resources to the betterment of life for the developmentally disabled. Harry Foster's work raised public awareness and private funds to combat the ignorance surrounding mental disability in Canada. With over seventy photographs and illustrations, this book recreates through story and image the life and the times of a great Canadian. Learn about the man, learn what enabled him to succeed and what motivated him to compassion.

ISBN 1-55021-078-5, 160 pages, b & w photos, paper, $24.95 Note: price may be lower, hardcover may be available. To order call University of Toronto Press, 1-800-565-9523. The book will be available in September 1994.
